Ghosts, Zombies, and Other Barriers to Communication

I'm a leadership geek committed to helping new managers become good leaders.

And when I look back on my career and my life, it's all there. All the many things I'm interested in and have studied come together in this thing called leadership. And when I look at where I serve my clients best, there it is: leadership.

I speak on real-world topics, presenting practical tools that attendees can use to change their professional and personal lives.

For 16 years, I held leadership positions in global organizations. In 2005, I realized I could have a more meaningful impact as an external consultant. Since then, it's been my mission to help leaders, teams, and individuals become the leaders they truly are.

I teach at local colleges and universities, speak for nonprofit and professional groups, and I wrote the manual on navigating politics in the workplace: Office Politics: the elephant in the conference room.

And I'd love to present for your group or organization.

I've been conducting virtual programs since 2005 - remember conference calls? - and I have a fully-equipped office video studio.

You've experienced it: that moment when a conversation goes badly wrong, and you don't know why.

It's simple: you were ghosted - or maybe zombied. (Yes, ghosts and zombies are real, and yes, they will haunt you and eat your brains - though not like in the movies!)

In this session, participants will

- ◆ Define communication ghosts and zombies and explain their relevance
- ◆ Realize how and why they undermine communication
- ◆ Learn to work with and manage their personal ghosts and zombies
- ◆ Open to heartfelt communication with the important people in their lives - including breaking free from old, unhelpful behavior patterns

"Thank you for your outstanding presentation. The participants demonstrated great enthusiasm and involvement in the experiential activity you designed and facilitated. You approached a complex topic with insight and compassion, and many positive comments were expressed about your enlightening presentation."
