Office Politics: the elephant in the conference room

I never thought of myself as a leader.

But when I look back on my career and my life, it's all there. When I look at the many things I'm interested in and have studied, it all comes together in this thing called leadership. And when I look at where I serve my clients best, there it is: leadership.

I speak on real-world topics, presenting practical tools that attendees can use to change their professional and personal lives.

For 16 years, I held leadership positions in global organizations. In 2005, I realized I could have a more meaningful impact as an external consultant. Since then, it's been my mission to help leaders, teams, and individuals become masterful communicators.

I teach at local colleges and universities, speak for nonprofit and professional groups, and I wrote the manual on navigating politics in the workplace: Office Politics: the elephant in the conference room.

I'd love to come speak for your group or organization.

Oh, the perils of office politics - and oh, how much we all hate to play that game!

Yet when you shift your perspective and realize what politics really involve (it's not what you think), you gain important communication skills that you can feel good about using.

And then you can advance your career with confidence and authenticity!

In this session, participants will

- ◆ Learn four key concepts to unlock the mystery of authentic, non-icky politics
- ◆ Act from a new, more meaningful definition of politics
- ◆ Radically improve your communication skills
- ◆ Make interpersonal politics work for you - with integrity

"Thank you for your outstanding presentation. The participants demonstrated great enthusiasm and involvement in the experiential activity you designed and facilitated. You approached a complex topic with insight and compassion, and many positive comments were expressed about your enlightening presentation."
